"THE LEWIS MAGNETIC CORSET"
IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

It is mechanically constructed upon scientific principles, symmetrical in shape and unique in design.

Each section of the corset is so formed as to maintain the vertical lines of the body, and readily conforms to the figure of the wearer.

It is stayed with strips of highly tempered spring ribbon steel, which is superior to any other boning material owing to its flexibility, smoothness and durability.

Each steel (or stay) is nickel plated, highly polished and guaranteed not to corrode, metal tipped to prevent the ends from cutting through the fabric, and electro magnetized, thereby transmuting a mild galvanic current through the body, strengthening the nerves, assisting the action of the heart and imparting additional vigor and energy to both body and mind.

The steel (or stays) are incased in separate pockets and can be removed or replaced at pleasure through the openings near the top of the corset, and are so distributed as to afford the necessary support to the spine, chest and abdomen, while at the same time so pliable that they yield readily to every movement of the body, thus assuring constant comfort to the wearer.

These corsets are made by experienced operators, from superior fabric, carefully examined by experts, and guaranteed not to break or roll up like inferior makes.

Ladies who, after giving them a fair trial, should not feel perfectly satisfied, can return them to the merchant from whom they were purchased and have their money refunded.

See that the name "Lewis' Magnetic Corset" is stamped on each pair, without which none are genuine.

Manufactured only by the CROMPTON CORSET CO.,

78 York Street, Toronto, Ontario.

FORESTERS CHURCH PARADE.

The Local Lodges Attend Divine Service—Impressive Sermon by Rev. F. B. Stacey.

On Sunday evening the members of the Independent Order of Foresters held their annual church parade. The place rendezvous was Mr. H. W. Carter's, corner of River and Main Sts. The members were further swelled by members of the Ancient and Canadian branches. The procession marched to the Methodist Church where an impressive sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. F. B. Stacey.

THE SUBJECT OF THE DISCOURSE

was the words of Isaiah the prophet to King Hezekiah: "Set thy house in order for thou shalt die and not live." These words were spoken to King Hezekiah, who was sick and appointed soon to die—a good man who had lived a good life; who had honored God and revered his name—and now at the close of his life the prophet Isaiah was sent to him with this exhortation. True, in consequence of prayer, his life was prolonged for fifteen years, nevertheless the words of the prophet had force throughout the remainder of his life.

"There is a thought in the text which all of us may heed with profit. Our outlook upon life is too narrow. So engrossed are we with the 'cares of the world'—with the bread and butter policy of life, that there is a tendency to look very little ahead and neither to the right or left. This inclination or tendency is not a correct one. The broader our relation with the external world—the wider our horizon—the nobler will be our conception of the ideal life. If we are accustomed our selves as men and brethren to look beyond ourselves so as to get broad, comprehensive, scriptural views of the world, the result will be enabling and our desire will be to better humanity. "First, then, as to our proper relation to the world and to those immediately about. In any subject there are two necessary elements: subjective and objective. e.g. with sight is associated the subjective and personal element: the eye; and the objective and external element: light. Again with hearing there is the ear, and sound. So with breathing we have the lungs and air.

"These two elements enter into human life. The latter, or objective relation, is the more important. It is said that the oak is contained in the acorn. This is true and not true. The larger life comes from without. The germ is contained in the seed, but air, light, moisture and the other external agencies build up the plant. Any definition of man or of human life that fails to recognize these two essential elements is too narrow. Spiritual growth is the outcome of active relationship with others, not of living within the narrow, contracted circle of self.

"A fact that is brought out forcibly in the text is the certainty of death. We all recognize the truth of Isaiah's words. Whatever contingency may arise in this life, death is the one great fact from which none can escape. "In our text the word 'house' is used in a large sense, to mean household: the family, God's great gift to man. There is no human relation so pure and sweet, so conducive to moral uplifting. The family is the outcome of the laws of life. Human government do sanction but do not create it.

"Now the moral and spiritual welfare of the family and society is what man should strive for. Man's will runs in a groove, in a circle bounded by God's will. In a certain sense man's will is like God's, but cannot go beyond certain lines.

"At railway divisional points there is a useful mechanical appliance called a turn-table. But before it is of any use certain conditions must be filled. The rails must be uniform in width with those of the main line. In some such way we may liken our lives in relation to ourselves and to the outside world. Man is capable of action upon certain defined lines. Beyond are God's laws which affect even the realms of space. How then are we to place ourselves in relation with the outside world? We must set ourselves in right adjustment with the laws of God and of humanity.

"Again, the engine may have all the requirements for service and may be capable in every respect, but there must be connection with the main line. So with us. We must have a sphere; we must run along God's lines of righteousness, truth, purity and holiness, or else ruin will be the inevitable result.

"Setting thy house in order" includes care for the mental and spiritual welfare of the family. Provision is made for intellectual development. Brethren, qualify those whom God has given you—those whom you can reach. Give them mental, physical and spiritual equipment, the grandest legacy in the providence of God. Educate! Draw out! Make men and women of the children of your homes. Get the best teachers in your schools and do not let the paltry and contemptible consideration of cheapness impair your children's interests. The twentieth century will see such things banished to the relics of the past.

"Our Lord made no distinction between rich and poor, and education tends to obliterate all such notions. To-day, as never before, the 'laboring classes have a chance.

"Brethren, you appear to-day as a Fraternity. Where did you get the idea of a brotherhood? From the New Testament, and from the first chapter of Genesis. Jesus Christ came the son of man that sons of men might become sons of the King.

"I am thankful that underlying all in your order is an avowed belief in God, before whom we bow in reverence. Reach up! Make your lives tally with this belief. Fit yourselves and those around you for 'that spiritual building not made with hands,' where the song shall be: 'Hallelujah! the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth! For that let us strive and live.

FUN FOR FAKIRS.

The Washburn Circus—A Slide Performance—"Five Calls Ten."

The gang of barn-stormers calling themselves "Leon W. Washburn's Great European Circus" arrived in town on Wednesday morning and planted their miserable conglomeration south of Manitoba St. near the station. Their tent hands and troupe comprised the vilest raffia ever concentrated into one company! The street parade was composed of a bandwagon, a steam whistle, a cage containing three exceedingly cowed-looking lions, a number of men and women in gaudy tinsel on horseback, a clown on a donkey, and one following at a distance in a small cart.

The elephants were also in line. The threshing machine, which they call the wonderful "steam horse" Ajax, did not appear.

The side show was as huge a fake as the rest of the combination, and the chief attraction was three gamblers who manipulated the "walnut shell and pea" racket. It is needless to say that a number of our townspeople were on hand with their tens and twenties and contributed liberally towards the expenses of transportation. One was so struck on his own infallible judgment that he put up his watch against a ten-dollar bill. Fortunately for him the police made the fakir return it. The fakirs state that they have struck many slaps, but for downright, pure, unadulterated gullibility they unhesitatingly give Moose Jaw the ban.

In addition to their other occupations the outfit indulge in the refreshing and innocent pastime of picking pockets and "showing the queer.

Several "Bugs of London" notes were spotted by merchants and an attempt to pass lead half dollar was made in more than one case.

The outfit "folded their tents" on Wednesday night and yesterday nothing but sickly, woo-begone guess I'll start and cut my eye-teeth soft of smiles on the faces of some of our citizens, remained to mark the fact that the circus had "been and gone."

COUNCIL MEETING.

Special and Regular Meetings—The Moose Jaw Dam—Other Business.

Minutes of special meeting of Moose Jaw Town Council held in the clerk's office June 17th 1893 for the purpose of passing a motion in reference to the Moose Jaw Dam.

Present: Mayor Grayson; councilors, Ferguson, Fysh and Simington. Fysh—Simington—That the following resolution be forwarded to the C. P. R. Committee.

"The opinion of this council it would be a great advantage to the town of Moose Jaw to have a dam placed across the Moose Jaw River. The advantages would also extend to the district through the manufacturing enterprises that are now only waiting cheap motive power. It would also furnish a water supply that could be utilized by the C. P. R.

We would therefore suggest that this matter be considered by your board of directors and would ask that while your engineers are on the Soo extension you would permit an examination by one of these experts of the matter referred to, as we fully believe it would be of the greatest interest and material benefit to the Company, town and district.

And that the town clerk furnish a copy of this resolution to Mr. J. H. Ross, M. L. A., who is about to visit Montreal, and is authorized to act on behalf of the town in this matter. Carried.

The council then adjourned.

REGULAR MEETING.

Minutes of regular meeting of Moose Jaw town council held in the clerk's office June 19th 1893.

Present: Mayor Grayson; councilors, Neeland, Fysh, Hannah, Simington and Ferguson.

After reading minutes of last regular and special meetings the following accounts were received and ordered to be paid:

A petition was received from Isahell Carey which was referred to finance committee.

Neeland—Ferguson—That the Board of Works committee be empowered to have the bridges on High and Manitoba Sts. replanked and put in good order. Carried.

Fysh—Simington—That Com. Herchmer be asked to supply five or six men for duty in Moose Jaw June 21st during the visit of Washburn's circus. Carried.

The council then adjourned.

Moose Jaw Educational Association.

At the meeting held June 10th an elaborate system of phonic markings was offered by Miss McMillan of Marlboro; which was accepted with a few slight changes. The system will no doubt prove a great benefit to the teachers who use the phonic method in teaching reading.

At the next meeting, June 24th, Mr. Campbell, of Westview, will introduce a discussion on the best method of teaching spelling.

MY STUDIES IN AMERICA.

BY KOTAI MARUDA, D. M. D.

The first year I could not understand either the language or the hearts of the Americans, but the second year I learned much of both. I also became acquainted with other nationalities, for there were there English, Irish, Scotch, French, Canadian, German, Armenian, Indian, African, Austrian, Danish, Chilean, Chinese and Japanese boys. I pitied myself and the other Japanese on account of our ill-treatment by the Europeans, because of our small stature and inferior physical appearance—but not on account of our mental qualities. My Japanese friend, Mr. K. Kurakara, was there with me, and we used to say to each other that we pitied ourselves, for we were so small and poor-looking that we could not get dignity from our personal appearance, and our country was small and poor, also, which led to ill-treatment from the great, strong nations. K. Kurakara afterward graduated from other seminaries and universities.

After I was expelled from the school I went back to Mr. Torrey's home in Boston, and stayed there about a month. I visited Dr. Nichols again, and painted more pictures for him, but this time I had been studying the language for two years, and could understand most of what was said before me. He was much interested in me, and let me work for him as a servant. I went to the sea shore to his summer cottage at Hull. Hull is one of Boston's suburbs, and is a most charming resort of city people. There are two large hills, with the main street between. On one of them the cottages are built, and the other, where the telegraph office is set, is covered with green grass. It is most delightful in the morning and at evening when the moon and stars are reflecting in the water their ever-twinkling faces, and when the wind is stirred upon the sea. The waves lift up their white hands and grasp at the stony shores, their solemn voices shouting in one grand harmony.

Hull is a floating paradise. In the midst of the echoing sea, Where man may escape on a summer's day From the hot wind's burning breath.

My father sent money for my journey home, but Dr. Nichols said: "Probably your father does not need you right away. Why don't you stay here for a while, and see how the future turns out? Perhaps some one will help you to study at the college, and when you get tired of America it will be time to talk of going home."

I made up my mind to stay with him. I served with my whole heart both indoors and outdoors in a flower garden, which I loved to work in for bodily exercise. I used to help the cook, wait on table, do chamber work, black boots, paint pictures, etc., from four o'clock in the morning till ten o'clock at night.

One day I had a narrow escape from death. Dr. Nichols and I went in bathing, for our health and to escape the heat. Dr. Nichols was taken with cramps, and called to me for help. I went to save him, but knowing so little about swimming, I could not get him out, and we were both saved by another man. I went to save him, following the impulse of my true heart, because of his tender kindness to me. Afterward I thought, "This will be enough to show the noble spirit of the Japanese."

Dr. Nichols took more and more interest in me on account of my artistic and mechanical talents. One day his friend, Dr. Libbey, a dentist, came to visit him and saw my work and pictures. He said: "The best thing to teach him dentistry, because the Japanese are artistic and mechanical." Dr. Nichols asked me about it. I said that I should like to study anything I could, for I was so poor and helpless. I could not study by myself. Then he said he would help me all he could. He said that Harvard was the most famous college in the country. So I took the examination for the dental department, and was granted admission by the dean.

During my school life I did decorative and artistic work, so that the people called me a Japanese artist. I gave several lectures on Japanese religion and customs, which helped me a good deal. I gave two lectures at Hull, which gave me much credit with the people. The performance of my duties to Dr. Nichols was like the evergreen leaves in the winter's snow, to sustain my vapor-like life for my future happy destiny.

BOHARN CLEANINGS.

We have been quietly looking on, and would add a word of caution to the numerous correspondents of Boharn. Do not say anything that might hurt the feelings of any.—Remember the Golden Rule.

Mr. E. Gregory, who has labored so earnestly and acceptably amongst us for the past year, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday. He goes to Saskatoon followed by the best wishes of the entire community.

Mr. M. Johnson has commenced weaving rather coarse cloth, but it is a good strong job. He uses wire thread and weaves by the rod.

Messrs. Walrod, Pascoe and Gowdy have all struck plenty of good water at a depth of less than twenty five feet.

Miss Annie Stephenson has returned from her visit to Pasqua.

Miss Mary Wynn has been spending a few days at Boharn.

We are pleased to see Mr. W. Anderson amongst us again. He has been heard to make the statement that there is no place so near his heart as Boharn.

Mr. F. Fowler is rusticiating at Mr. William's ranch.

Mr. Joe. Bato has returned from Old Wives Lake.

It is no longer a secret what your correspondent's other name is. One of our merchants was in the TIMES office, the type setter left his case for a moment, and the merchant caught a glimpse of the writing and declared it was a lady's hand, large and pointed; he says he would know it among a thousand, for he has seen hundreds just like it. One of our young men says he wonders if he could bribe the printer's devil, but is afraid he won't bribe.

One of the happiest events we have had for a long time occurred last Saturday; being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Auger. The invitations had been issued for a week and about fifteen o'clock carriages could be seen coming in all directions and about sixteen o'clock the guests had all arrived and the house was well filled. The party then sat down to a sumptuous repast to which they did ample justice. Afterward they went out and formed a ring with Mr. and Mrs. Auger in the centre. Then followed complimentary speeches by the guests and best wishes by all. The neighbors then dispersed after having spent a happy evening. The following is a list of some of the presents, we failed to get them all:—Silver butter dish, Mrs. Johnston; silver sugar-spoon, Mrs. J. J. Porter; half dozen silver desert spoons, Mr. Gregory; half dozen silver forks and pickle fork, Mrs. E. N. Hopkins; half dozen silver tea spoons, Mrs. A. Arnold; two silver keepsakes, Mrs. R. K. Thompson; linen table cover Mrs. Robt. Green.
